Critical condition.
Dartmouth senior, 83, tripped tossing trash

An 83-year-old Dartmouth woman was in critical condition Thursday night after being run over by a garbage truck right outside of her Maynard Street home.

Paramedics rushed her to hospital at about 2:10 p.m., after she had been pinned underneath the vehicle's wheels, Halifax Regional Police spokesman Const. Pierre Bourdages said.

Her name was not released. "No charges have been laid at this time," Bourdages said.

The quiet road remained cordoned off with yellow tape between Portland and Summit streets as police continued their investigation of the sad scene early Thursday evening.

"We heard it," a woman who was gardening on nearby Old Ferry Road said, as officers roamed the area, the blue and red lights of their vehicles flashing and drivers slowing down to take a peek.

"Someone came out ... yelling ... 'stop, stop!'" she said, shaking her head.

"What we understand is the lady in the white house came out and the garbage truck ... (was) starting to move," she said, pointing to the green waste management truck parked outside of an attached white house.

"She had a bag of garbage that she wanted to throw in, and she tripped and fell, and the back wheels of the trucks went over her legs," the concerned neighbour said.

"The driver stopped very, very quickly, but I imagine

Tragic accident

he's in shock," she said, adding "it didn't take any time for the ambulance to come; the emergency people, they were here in two or three minutes, I'd say."

A man in a yellow safety vest, with silver reflective stripes, stood by himself in the middle of Maynard Street, while police investigators snapped photos and took measurements.

Two men inside another waste management truck parked nearby and watched in shock. KRISTEN LIPSCOMBE/METRO

RCMP, dozens of police agencies joined forces for Operation Snapshot III

RUTH DAVENPORT

In the wake of a national child sexual exploitation investigation that resulted in the rescue of five children, a senior RCMP officer is urging Canadians to educate themselves about on-line perils.

"Prevention is our strongest ally," said Insp. Bob Resch, the officer in charge of the National Child Exploitation Coordination Centre. "By empowering children, parents, friends and teachers on how to combat internet predators, you can make a difference."

Resch joined police officers from across the country in Halifax Thursday to announce the results of Operation Snapshot III, an investigation involving 40 Canadian police agencies.

More than 150 people are facing 343 charges, ranging from luring to sexual assault.

Five children in four provinces were rescued and more than one million images were seized.

"These images are not simply children having a bubble bath," said Sgt. Mike Petrilli of the Canadian Police Centre for Missing and Exploited Children. "They are clearly children that are in a situation where they are being sexually assaulted."

Ten people have been charged in Nova Scotia, including four in the Halifax area.

RCMP Cpl. Jadie Spence, a member of the Halifax Integrated Internet Child Exploitation Unit, said the accused are all men, but vary in age and occupation.

"We often see that they don't have a criminal record," he said. "There's no profile other than ... males, of any age, they can be doing any job, any profession."

Nova Scotia is one of only two provinces that has a law requiring any citizen who becomes aware of child pornography to report it, something Sadie said most people don't know.

He said tips from the public are important to his job.

"The Internet is huge, so we need citizens out there who are seeing things, reporting them to us, or reporting to cybertip.ca," he said.

Halifax woman charged with pimping out two young girls

Sex trade. Police believe there are more victims

halifax@metronews.ca

A Herring Cove Road woman is charged with a slew of human trafficking and prostitution charges for allegedly pimping out underage girls.

Tashlynn Marie Shaw, 23, appeared in Halifax provincial court Thursday. She faces 22 offences following an investigation that included interviews with two young girls "who had been coerced to continue working in the sex trade."

"The investigation also revealed that, on two separate occasions, the woman used a weapon to assault one of the victims," Halifax Regional Police said in a release.

Officers arrested Shaw at home without incident Wednesday.

Charges against her include trafficking a child, invitation to sexual touching, living off underage prostitution, possessing a dangerous weapon, assault with a weapon, luring children, assault causing bodily harm and forcible confinement, among several others.

The HRP/RCMP Integrated Vice Unit believes there may be more victims.

"Given the information gathered in the investigation, and also the fact that we had two victims identified very quickly, we do believe there are more victims in this case," police spokesman Const. Pierre Bourdages said.

"This is the fourth (recent) incident where human trafficking charges have been laid," Bourdages added.

"We do urge anyone with information about other victims, or about underage prostitution whatsoever, to give us a call."

Police ask anyone with information about the case to call 490-5016 with any tips, or to call Crime Stoppers at 1-800-222-8477.

Boy charged after group attacked with bear spray

Police say a 16-year-old boy is facing charges after five teens were attacked with bear spray during a robbery attempt on Tuesday night.

Halifax RCMP say the incident happened around 8:30 p.m. at a local park on Walker Avenue in Lower Sackville.

Police say the teen demanded the group give up their valuables. When they refused, police say the accused sprayed them with bear spray and ran off.

The suspect was arrested a short time later by officers on nearby Marie Drive.

The teen is charged with administering a noxious substance, possession of a prohibited weapon, possession of a weapon for a dangerous purpose, assault with a weapon and breach of conditions. METRO

Libraries working to improve accessibility

Inclusion of all users.

The Universal Access Plan was presented to an advisory committee this week

ruth.davenport@metronews.ca

Halifax's libraries are embarking on a two-year plan to improve the accessibility of equipment, collections and employment opportunities.

Heather MacKenzie, Halifax Public Libraries' manager of diversity and accessibility, presented the Universal Access Plan to the city's accessibility advisory committee this week, saying the goal is not just accommodation, but seamless inclusion of all library users.

"We have a good foundation of basic accessibility in many of

Training

"We decided as a team to emphasize the programming and getting our staff up to speed."

Kathleen Peverill, Halifax Libraries director of community engagement our locations, but this is our opportunity to move beyond that into a high level of universal access," she said.

MacKenzie said the library has consulted with some advocacy groups and will continue to meet and consult with others throughout the process.

The top concerns so far include better employment opportunities, more assistive technology, and inclusion while recognizing special needs.

Over the next two years, she said, the libraries will address those priorities through improved staff training, the launch of a pilot job-shadowing program for persons with intellectual disabilities, and more accessible hiring practices and digital collections.

Director of community engagement Kathleen Peverill told the committee the plan doesn't address physical accessibility, as that isn't the issue at most branches.

"Those are the things we've been easily able to do," she said.

Committee members made several recommendations, including having a trained staff person consistently on hand to help with assistive technologies — and having assistive platforms on every workstation instead of just one or two.

"I think that would be ideal, to ... have a basic platform of accessibility on all computers, so that's probably going to be part of our plan," said MacKenzie. "That's more universal access."

Three charged in animal cruelty case plead guilty, banned from owning animals for 10 years

Three people have pleaded guilty to animal cruelty and have been banned from owning animals for 10 years, the Nova Scotia SPCA announced Thursday.

In March, the SPCA says they removed 125 cats from a home in Dartmouth and three people were charged a short time later.

The list of charges included animal cruelty, confining an animal to an enclosure or area with inadequate space, unsanitary conditions, and inadequate ventilation or without providing an opportunity for exercise so as to significantly impair the animal's health or well being.

The cats were moved to provincial shelters in Kings, Colchester and Pictou counties, and the SPCA says some remain in their care.

The SPCA estimates the cost of taking care of the cats totalled over $15,000 in the first few weeks.

start noticing their favourite fairy-tale characters are popping up around town — with a twist.

Ramona Westgate, Halifax Pride board chair, announced the 27th annual festival line-up on Thursday, including the "Once Upon a Pride" theme featuring a bearded fairy godmother, a mermaid in a wheelchair, and a buff Pinocchio with a rainbow flag on his nose.

"The festival has grown immensely in the last number of years — it's really exploded," Westgate said about the event that runs from July 17 to 27.

Besides the "diversified" characters, Westgate said cutouts of the cartoons may appear at events, including new ones such as Laugh Out Proud at Yuk Yuk's and the punk-rock show Outloud! at Michael's Bar.

Out Best in Show is the festival's first dog show, Westgate said, and gives people the chance to show off their "fur babies."

Scott Jones, co-founder of the Don't Be Afraid awareness campaign against homophobia, will be the grand marshal for the July 26 parade.

Trans Connect's All-Bodies Swim brings an inclusive environment to the Centennial Pool, Westgate said, and Pride supports an event that encourages people to be "comfortable and accepting of the packages people come in."

A new Pride Youth Dance also allows those under 19 to have fun in a drug- and alcohol-free environment, Westgate said.

Over the last few years, the Pride parade has grown to about 110,000 people, a figure that Westgate said makes the Halifax Pride Festival the fourth-largest in Canada.

Westgate said she hopes anyone attending Pride thinks about what diversity and inclusion means to them.

"There are so many ... ways that make us different, and that's what makes us each special," she said.

HALEY RYAN
haley.ryan@metronews.ca

Although Saint Mary's Cathedral Basilica will remain "as welcoming as (it was) before" on the inside, Peter Browne said those who park illegally in the parish's private lots will soon be getting the boot.

After July 2, any vehicles without a valid permit or pay stub will be immobilized with a tire boot.

"Unfortunately we are having to get more serious with this," said Browne, finances administrator for the Archdiocese of Halifax-Yarmouth.

The parking lot near Saint Mary's Cathedral Basilica. JEFF HARPER/METRO

The lots will be monitored 24-7 by Target Park outside of mass times or church events. Those who wish to remove the boot would need to pay $92.50.

"It's about trying to take the lot back for the parishioners," Browne said.

He said about half of the 80 lots near the bottom of Spring Garden Road are often taken up by those going to the nearby library or attending an event at the Metro Centre.

The lot behind the church will become paid parking for the public, with passes running about $10 a day, while the lot beside the church will be for staff and visitors who can use free temporary permits.

To those who say enforcing such strict rules isn't very Christian, Browne said churchgoers will see no difference "because if you're coming to mass you're parking free."

Michelle Crawford said she's been using the lot for years when she comes downtown and said the change is "unfortunate" but not surprising.

"I've ... always thought of it as a little secret in the city, so I'll definitely miss that," she said.

Toronto. Air Canada flight to Brazil forced home due to unscreened passenger

Canadian officials were saying little Thursday about a security lapse at Pearson International airport that prompted them to order an Air Canada flight with 189 passengers en route to Brazil to return to Toronto after several hours in the air.

Air Canada said Flight 090 took off for São Paulo at around 11:30 p.m. Wednesday, unaware a passenger had boarded without proper screening.

"With the aircraft already in the air for four hours, we were notified of this and ordered by Transport Canada to have the aircraft return to Toronto," Air Canada spokesman Peter Fitzpatrick said in an email.

The plane landed at 6:30 a.m. at Pearson and was surrounded by police.

Airport authorities had said Wednesday that all departing international flights from Terminal 1 were suspended while police searched for a man who had passed through security unchecked.

An Air Canada flight to Brazil was forced to return to Toronto early Thursday due to a security breach. THE CANADIAN PRESS FILE

Peel regional police said Thursday they were called to the airport for a "security breach" to try to identify the man who had triggered the alert. Using surveillance footage, they were able to determine he had boarded the Air Canada flight.

Officers interviewed him on the plane's return to Canada.

"We found there was no criminality involved and that was pretty much it," Const. George Tudos said. "At that point, he was allowed to re-board." THE CANADIAN PRESS

Twitter. Despite positive PR potential for police, study points out pitfalls

Police forces across the country are flocking to Twitter, breaking news about arrests, soliciting tips from the public and offering real-time information during disasters.

But a University of British Columbia researcher says services like Twitter also present pitfalls as officers blur their professional and private lives.

Sociology professor Christopher Schneider has released a study that found police forces in Canada primarily use Twitter as a public-relations tool, with some forces such as Toronto police even encouraging individual officers to tweet from their own accounts.

Schneider's research identifies potential dangers, such as officers tweeting sensitive information or writing something offensive.

And he says while personal tweets might help present an officer as likable, they may also undermine the authority of police forces. THE CANADIAN PRESS

More than 120 cats seized from home in Halifax area

The SPCA in Nova Scotia says three people have pleaded guilty to animal cruelty following the discovery of more than 120 cats in a Halifax-area home.

The cats were taken to shelters — which the SPCA estimates cost more than $15,000 within the first few weeks — and the three people have been banned from owning animals for 10 years. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Justice minister defends remarks on female judges

Gender offender.

Peter MacKay had said fewer women apply for federal bench positions to stay home with kids

Federal Justice Minister Peter MacKay is defending comments he made last week about why so few women are appointed as judges in Canada.

MacKay was responding to Wednesday's Toronto Star report about an Ontario Bar Association meeting at which he was asked about the lack of women and minorities on federally appointed court benches.

MacKay answered the question by saying that women don't apply to be judges because they fear the job will take them away from their children — and that children need their mothers more than their fathers, the Star report said.

On Thursday, rather than back away from the comments, MacKay stood his ground.

"At early childhood, there's no question I think that women have a greater bond with their children," he said.

Canada needs more women to apply for judicial appointments, he continued, before walking away from reporters.

Conservative responses

Some of MacKay's Conservative colleagues appeared uncomfortable with his remarks.

- Calgary MP Michelle Rempel said parliamentarians should celebrate women, no matter their career choices, including staying at home.
- Ontario MP Mike Wallace refused to comment on the matter, saying it's up to MacKay to defend his own statements.
- And Quebec MP Maxime Bernier laughed off the comments, but was quick to point out that he has a "special bond" with his daughters.

Later in the House of Commons, opposition MPs pounced on MacKay's comment, declaring them sexist and demanding an apology.

"I ask the minister to apologize to all Canadians for blaming motherhood for his abject failure to ensure that the federal court reflects the diversity of society," said Liberal MP Carolyn Bennett.

MacKay insisted, however, that he was being unfairly maligned.

"That, of course, is a complete mischaracteriza-tion of what I said, what I think, how I act and who I am," he told the Commons. Judicial appointments are made solely on the basis of merit, he added.

"With respect to minorities and women being promoted to the judiciary,

I think we can all agree that government, of course, plays an important role in that, but so too do law schools and law societies, and that is exactly the message I was bringing to the Ontario Bar Association."

Government to unveil major reform of temporary foreign worker program

The Harper government was set to announce reforms to the controversial temporary foreign worker program on Friday.

The announcement will be made by Employment Minister Jason Kenney and Immigration Minister Chris Alexander at a 2:30 p.m. news conference in Ottawa.

A poll commissioned by Ottawa suggested Canadians would be in favour of creating an easier path for workers under the program to remain in the country and even obtain citizenship in order to retain their skills.

Industry groups consulted by Kenney and officials say they believe the key change will be to make it more difficult for firms to bring in workers for unskilled, low-paying jobs, such as in the food-service industry.

News reports also have speculated the government might impose a wage floor for TFWs that is higher than the Canadian minimum wage.

One change almost certain to be in the measures is new fines for firms that abuse the system.

Kenney recently told MPs

in the House he intended to "severely punish non-compliant employers and prevent distortions in certain regions or industries in the labour market."

Kenney also will likely increase the cost to employers of bringing in temporary workers.

The program has become a hot potato for the Harper government ever since stories of abuses came to light in the news media, including one case where Royal Bank employees were asked to train foreign workers to take over their jobs.

In February, 65 Alberta

ironworkers contended they were let go so that foreign workers could replace them.

The program has become increasingly used by Canadian firms for both high- and low-skilled positions, despite relatively high levels of unemployment and data showing the number of unemployed to vacancies was rising.

A recent government calculation estimated there were 386,000 temporary foreign workers in Canada, or about two per cent of the labour force, up from about 100,000 in 2002.

Dude, where are women in video games?

Electronic Entertainment Expo.

New games feature assassins, soldiers, bank robbers and secret agents. And they are all men.

At last week's Electronic Entertainment Expo, video game developers hyped upcoming titles featuring super-soldiers, assassins, bank robbers and secret agents. They all had one thing in common: They're men.

The continued lack of female protagonists in games shown off at E3 highlighted an issue that continues to loom over the video game industry. Why is it still such a dude fest?

"It's boring that we're continuing to have this conversation," said Belinda Van Sickle, president and CEO of the advocacy group Women in Games International.

"I started in the industry nine years ago and it seems like we're having the same conversation with the same responses from industry insiders, gamers and the media. It needs to be more substantive."

While there were a few notable exceptions at this year's E3 — like thrill-seeker Lara Croft in Rise of the Tomb Raider and sci-fi survivor Amanda in Alien: Isolation — male characters still far outnumber female protagonists in video games.

"The more women we have playing games, the more we will be able to have a balance between women and men in the games," said Yves Guillemot, CEO of Ubisoft.

Ubisoft came under the most fire at E3 after revealing that the playable characters in the co-op modes of both its historical adventure Assassin's Creed: Unity and shoot-'em-up Far Cry 4 would all be men.

Despite the fact previous instalments of those series featured female avatars, the developers cited technical limitations for the lack of girl power.

"Any character you create requires extra resources, gender aside," explained Eric Hirshberg, CEO of Activision Publishing. "Any character that has a different look, voice, mechanics or way of moving, requires more work.... But that's not a reason not to do something. We create lots of different characters with lots of different movements."

In addition to technical issues, the reasons given for gender imbalance in the game world can include psychology, financial justifications and perhaps sexism.

Many in the industry believe the problem stems from the game-makers themselves, most of whom are men.

Van Sickle of Women in Games International said that 12 to 18 per cent of the industry is women and many game developers and publishers have problems finding and retaining female employees.

"My thesis is that it's a male-dominated business," said Patrick Soderlund, executive vice-president at EA Studios.

"I'm not sure that flies, but I think it overall may

Teacher of inmates raped at prison: report

A teacher at an Arizona prison was alone in a room full of sex offenders before being stabbed and sexually assaulted by a convicted rapist, according to documents obtained by The Associated Press about an attack that highlighted major security lapses at the facility.

The attack occurred Jan. 30 at the Eyman prison's Meadows Unit, which houses about 1,300 sex offenders.

The teacher was administering a high school equivalency test to about a half-dozen inmates in a classroom with no guard nearby and only a radio to call for help.

The Department of Corrections issued only a bare-bones press release after the attack, but the AP pieced together what happened based on reports obtained under the Arizona Public Records Act.

After the last of the other inmates left, Jacob Harvey asked the teacher if she could open the bathroom and then attacked her, records show. Harvey is accused of stabbing her in the head with a pen and sexually assaulting her.

The teacher told investigators that she screamed for

Hemp seeds held at U.S.-Canada border

Fledgling industry. Seizure underscores difficulties facing U.S. hemp industry after decades of prohibition

Hundreds of pounds of industrial hemp seeds bound from Canada to Colorado have been seized by federal authorities in North Dakota, marking the latest bump along the road to legalization of marijuana's non-intoxicating cousin.

At the centre of the dispute is hemp activist Tom McClain. Armed with a copy of last year's federal Farm Bill, which allowed states to permit hemp cultivation for research and development, he set off for MacGregor, Manitoba, and bought 350 pounds of seeds used to grow a strain known as X-59 or Hemp Nut.

Hemp is legal in Canada, and North Dakota is one of 15 states with laws that allow limited hemp production. However, under the Farm Bill, importing hemp seeds requires permission from the U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration.

McClain's seeds were confiscated Saturday at the border crossing in Hansboro, North Dakota, after he says he declared the seven bags in his trunk. McClain, however, has not been charged with a crime. "They treated me very professionally," McClain said after he returned to Colorado — without the seeds. "They were just a little confused as to what to do."

Smartphone thefts. Data show iPhone 'kill switch' sharply reduces crime

New crime data show Apple's addition of a "kill switch" to its iPhones last September has sharply reduced robberies and thefts, authorities in the U.S. said Thursday.

The report from a year-old initiative called Secure Our Smartphones said Google and Microsoft will incorporate a kill switch into the next version of their operating systems on smartphones.

In New York City, robberies of Apple products fell 19 per cent while grand larcen-ies dropped 29 per cent in the first five months of 2014 compared with a year earlier, according to the report. Robberies and grand larcenies involving a Samsung smartphone, which didn't have a kill switch during much of that time, rose more than 40 per cent.

The iPhone switch is an opt-in feature that allows the user to locate the phone on a map and remotely lock or erase it.

Colleges to collect better stats on stalking, violence

United States. Victims' advocates say statistics, as currently compiled, don't paint an accurate picture of sexual crimes on campuses

The Obama administration wants colleges and universities to compile statistics on stalking, dating violence and domestic violence as part of its ongoing effort to curb sexual assaults on campuses.

The Education Department proposed a new rule Thursday designed to provide a better picture of these problems.

The proposed rule change falls under the Clery Act, which requires colleges and universities to report crime statistics on or near their campuses and provide warnings in a timely manner if safety is threatened. The Violence Against Women Reauthorization Act of 2013 signed by President Barack Obama amended the Clery Act by extending additional rights to campus victims.

Victims' advocates have said the statistics, as currently compiled, don't paint an accurate picture of the extent of sexual crimes on campuses.

"These new rules strengthen schools' capacity to provide safer college campuses for students and to keep everyone better informed

Heated discussion, then...

"We actually agreed on everything at the end of the day."

Laura Dunn, founder of SurvJustice who served on the committee about campus security policies and procedures," Education Secretary Arne Duncan said. Among other proposed rule changes: Adding gender identity and national origin as categories of bias under the Clery Act's definition of hate crimes; strengthening confidentiality protections for victims; requiring that discipline is "prompt, fair and impartial."

L.A. 1983 law barring people from living in parked cars struck down

A U.S. federal appeals court on Thursday struck down a 31-year-old Los Angeles law that bars people from living in parked vehicles, saying the vaguely written statute discriminates against the homeless and poor.

The three-judge panel ruling involved a 1983 law that prohibits the use of a vehicle "as living quarters either overnight, day-by-day, or otherwise."

The court said the law was unconstitutional because its ambiguous wording does not make clear what conduct would constitute a violation and "criminalizes innocent behaviour."

The decision came in a case brought on behalf of four people who were arrested in the Venice area by Los Angeles police.

The officers were part of an LAPD homelessness task force charged with enforcing the ordinance in response to community complaints.

The panel's ruling overturned a lower court judge who had sided with the city. The ruling might force other cities to amend statutes that outlaw sleeping in vehicles.

Attempted murder, armed robbery charges

An armoured car guard is in critical condition after being shot several times during a robbery attempt in Toronto early Thursday.

Toronto police Staff Insp. Mike Earl said the guard, who returned fire, took four rounds to the body. A second guard never got out of the locked truck. Three men, all 18, were later arrested. Among the charges laid are attempted murder and armed robbery.

Americans have come a long way from hunting and gathering food

Evolution or devolution?

People in the U.S. don't even have to wander the chilly grocery aisles to buy food anymore — there is a buffet of firms who will do it for them

If you dread making supermarket runs, you're in luck.

Same-day grocery delivery services from Google, Instacart and Postmates are expanding into more cities around America, delivering everything from cereal to bottled water to toilet paper from nearby stores.

The Associated Press tried out all three services. They're fast, easy to use and way more convenient than waiting in the checkout line. All three deliver from local stores in the U.S., as well as some big national chains, such as Whole Foods, Costco and Target.

Americans now have the option of letting the groceries come to them. Several companies are offering same-day delivery services. SPENCER PLATT/GETTY IMAGES FILE

The services across America are different from more established grocery delivery companies such as FreshDirect, Peapod and Amazon-

Fresh, because they don't actually sell groceries directly to you. Google Shopping Express, Instacart and Postmates merely send someone to stores in your neighbourhood. It works like this: You select what you want online or on an app, choose a delivery time and the service will deliver the items to your door.

But convenience comes at a price. The delivery charges can vary greatly. Google and Instacart offer flat rates, while Postmates' fees depend on the distance of the delivery. And you may want to tip the delivery people. All three companies say it's not necessary, but Instacart and Postmates allows you to add a tip while shopping on the app or website.

Besides delivery costs, Instacart charges a premium for items from some of the stores it delivers from. That means you will end up paying a lot more than if you walked over to the shop and bought it yourself.

Another downside: Getting your groceries delivered means you may be missing out on using coupons or browsing for cheaper alternatives in the store. And the orders do not always go according to plan.

Grocery wars

How the services measure up

Google Shopping Express

- Items listed on Google's service match those of the stores it works with.
- The company doesn't deliver meats, fish, fruits and other perishables.
- $4.99 US for each delivery.

Instacart

- Prices are higher on items from stores it doesn't have a relationship with.
- You can order from Costco even if you don't have a membership.
- Two-hour deliveries are $3.99, one-hour are $14.99.

Postmates

- Besides groceries, the company delivers from local restaurants, drugstores and fast-food joints.
- Delivery fees start at $5 and are determined by distance. A nine per cent service fee is also charged.

Starbucks. Baristas to get discount for tuition at Arizona State University

It turns out Starbucks isn't contributing any upfront scholarship money to an online college degree program it introduced this week.

The Seattle-based company unveiled a program Monday that included a scholarship it described as "an investment" between Starbucks and Arizona State University. The program is designed to allow Starbucks workers to earn an online degree at the school at a steeply discounted rate.

Following the announcement of the program Arizona State University President Michael Crow told the Chronicle of Higher Education that Starbucks is not contributing any money toward a scholarship. Instead, Arizona State will essentially charge workers less than the sticker price for online tuition. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Dov Charney. Montrealer who rose to infamy as head of American Apparel is out

The board of American Apparel voted to oust founder Dov Charney as chairman and notified him of its intent to remove him as president and chief executive, the clothing chain says.

The move means Charney was suspended as president and CEO of the Los Angeles-based chain pending a contractually required 30-day period before he can be terminated.

The board's statement said that the proposed firing is for cause, and cited an "ongoing investigation into alleged misconduct" without giving details.

"We take no joy in this, but the board felt it was the right thing to do," said Allan Mayer, one of two board members appointed co-chairmen to replace Charney.

1 Futbol anyone? You can always count on the World Cup to elicit some hardcore patriotism. After all, what could be more pride-inducing than watching professional soccer players from different countries play for other countries to millions of fans cheering vehemently for the nation they came from but no longer live in?

2 Scientific breakthrough. A University of Toronto research centre has developed a groundbreaking scheme that could cure major diseases plaguing humanity for ages. It's daring. It's radical. It's called ... sharing! How does it work? Imagine someone in Europe makes an experimental breakthrough, but is missing one crucial element. Enter U of T's recent genetic advancements, combine them, and it's the peanut-butter cup of life-saving science. Sounds gimmicky to me. It'll never catch on.

4 Runneth over. The L.A. Kings won the Stanley Cup and all I can think about is how greedy that city can be. They already have Hollywood, warm weather, hot celebrities, the Oscars, the Kar-

5 Pass it over. A 22-year-old threw a football over a Michigan prison wall. Unfortunately, it missed its unknown recipient and landed between two security fences. Officers recovered the ball, which was stuffed with weed, heroin, tobacco and three cellphones with chargers. He was charged with three counts of furnishing contraband to inmates, and shattered his dream of ever playing in the NFL. #dumbcriminals

6 Not-so-free agent. The San Antonio Spurs won their fifth NBA title in 15 years with a convin-

to audition for Rob Ford The Musical: The Birth of a Ford Nation. As a former Second Citizen myself, I assure you that the position won't be cast based on physical traits. The role will be assigned to the performer who best embodies the elements that bring truth to the character. Also, very few physical props are used, so any crack-smoking will be mimed. Can't promise the same for the "drunken stupors."

8 Eastbound for sound. Music lovers looking for a brief Canadian getaway are invited to join me next week for the Festival International de Jazz de Montréal. Montreal is beautiful in the summertime and even better with performances from Aretha Franklin, Elvis Costello, Michael Bublé, Nikki Yanofsky and I'm especially looking forward to hearing Snoop Dogg rap in French. #FIJM

9 Final broadcast. The world mourns the loss of entertainment icon Casey Kasem this week. I'd like to send out this long-distance dedication to the man whose voice taught us new words on Sesame Street, devoured Scooby snacks as Shaggy, and counted down the hits for us each week. Though his feet may no longer be on the ground, may he always be reaching for the stars. #RIP

The future will be hoverized

Mark De Roche says the company hopes their hovercrafts will have recreational applications. "Our goal is to set up air parks where people can be trained in a scenic environment as the hovercraft doesn't damage land in the same way that a car does," he says. COURTESY AEROFEX CORPORATION

Introducing Aero-X

Sci-fi hovers into reality

A sci-fi hover bike, akin to the flying forest speeders from Star Wars: Return of the Jedi, is set to take off by 2017. The Aero-X, designed by Californian-based Aerofex Corporation, uses ducted rotors in a similar fashion to a helicopter but with far greater control. The aircraft, which costs $85,000 US and can fly at 72 km/h, will only hover to heights of 4.5 metres, so that a pilot's licence isn't required. Chief technology officer Mark De Roche tells Metro why we'll all be riding into the future on a hovercraft.

Did you decide to design this after watching Star Wars Episode VI: Return of the Jedi? (Laughs) I hate to disappoint but I've only seen one of the Star Wars movies and it didn't influence the design.

In the James Bond movie Die Another Day hovercraft float over minefields. Are the military interested? It's not going to be used by the military at this stage. But the Aero-X can be used for ranching, crop dusting, and search and rescue.

Is it like riding a hovercraft or a motorcycle? It's probably closer to a motorcycle. You're in a dynamic air environment. At first your eyes are fixed on the ground but when you get used to focusing on the horizon and adapt to the winds, you're transported into a different element. You bank into a turn based on the wind like sailing — you get an intuitive sense about the wind.

Do you require a helmet? I didn't wear one for quite some time and the guys and I decided it was reckless. We were in the desert so I didn't feel much need but it's likely depending on the laws of a country whether a helmet will be required. METRO

Jersey Boys opens this weekend. CONTRIBUTED

Synopsis

Based on the Broadway hit of the same name, Jersey Boys begins in 1951 Belleville, N.J. and follows childhood friends Frankie Valli (John Lloyd Young who won a Tony for his performance of Valli on stage), Tommy DeVito (Vincent Piazza) and Nick Massi (Michael Lomenda) from the streets to the studio and with the addition of songwriter and keyboardist Bob Gaudio (Erich Bergen), from clubs to concert halls as the Four Seasons, one of the biggest-selling acts in rock history. Hits like Big Girls Don't Cry, Walk Like A Man and Can't Take My Eyes Off You kept them at the top of the charts — but ego, infighting, and money troubles blew them apart.

SCENE

Go for the tunes, not the theatrics.

Clint Eastwood-helmed rags-to-riches music tale lacks realism, but is saved by a bunch of earworms that will have audiences tapping their toes

Richard: Mark, I thought director Clint Eastwood set up the story of the band well enough. From their hardscrabble beginnings to the height of their success, it's a rags-to-riches story and when it focuses on the four band members, it works.

Unfortunately it takes a cast of characters to tell the tale, and Eastwood seems content to allow his supporting actors to go off-the-charts theatrical. By the time the end credits roll, it's clear that the movie is a caricature of a real-life story.

Nothing feels completely genuine, as if the theatricality of the stage version bled into the film.

Mark: Richard, I think I know when the film goes off the rails.

When the band breaks up two-thirds of the way through, everything that follows feels forced, cheesy, and the emotions play a bit phoney.

But I still enjoyed the movie. I saw the theatrical version twice and I'm a big fan of the group.

The music makes a bigger impact in the stage version, but some of the characters play better in the film.

None of the acting is stellar, but it's always fun to watch Christopher Walken do his "good mobster" schtick, and Erich Bergen as Bob Gaudio, the brains of the group, really stood out for me.

RC: The songs are undeniably catchy and well performed by a cast, three-quarters of which come from the various incarnations of the stage show.

They are earworms that sound authentic, by and large thanks to Young who perfectly mimics Valli's soaring multi-octave falsetto voice. The bulk of the movie, unfortunately, doesn't soar as high as Young's voice. The Broadway show is basically a rock concert with a story. The big-screen treatment requires more.

MB: I thought it did — in places. The feuding between the members of the group worked better in the movie, but the opening scenes of Italian boys in da hood has been done many times before, and went on way too long. Note that it takes one full hour before they sing their first hit, Sherry.

The movie filled in a lot of texture about the Jersey mob and life on the road that wasn't in the play, but you know, Richard, it's about a rock group in the 1960s, so I don't even have to like it to like it.

RC: I liked the style, the songs, but I wanted more from the characters. The songs will stay in your head; the characters won't.

MB: And after Valli got his name upfront of the group, shouldn't it technically have been Frankie Valli and the Three Seasons?

When a Guy becomes an animal

Guy Pearce, left, and Robert Pattinson, star in The Rover, which opens this weekend. CONTRIBUTED

The Rover. Actor Guy Pearce talks about surviving in a post apocalyptic world — aided by a special kind of water bottle

NED EHRBAR
Metro World News in Hollywood

Guy Pearce is a little preoccupied with water bottles at the moment. The Australian actor was apparently so taken with the particular metal bottle — made by S'well — that he carried around on the set of the dystopian film The Rover that he contacted the company himself about them.

Which is why I find myself carrying an identical bottle into my interview with him. "Ah, you got one! Excellent! What colour is it?" he asks straight off, comparing it to the one he's sipping from.

The package says it's blue. That's good because this is the colour of the one I carried around on the movie. The whole time, the art department woman told me, "When we get to that scene that we're going to do in the café, I'm going to use that bottle." I said, "Oh great, fantastic." But she said, "I need to get it more battered up and beaten up." Of course we used it, because there's something sort of blue in every scene, there's a small blue thing in every scene. So she used the bottle, and it's there like an internal promotion. And then I ended up buying all the crew one of these each and had them print The Rover on them, which I think is what you've got in there. Can I have a quick look? (He takes my bottle and unwraps it.)

So that bar in the movie just serves water?

Pretty much, yeah. We don't even know if it's a bar or what it is, it's just some sort of place. It probably serves food if you were to ask, but I don't know what you'd get.

This film doesn't waste a lot of time explaining why or what everything is, it just presents this world as it is.

And that's what's great about (writer-director) David (Michod). As an audience member, there's so much of you wanting to work out what's going on that it's nice to not be told everything all the time. I think it can be really evocative if you feel like a fly on the wall or you're just brought into a world and it's happening in front of you without following the usual formula. And I get why formulas work and why they're utilized, but I do think it's really interesting sometimes to just come in crossways instead of just being introduced in the front door and explained everything.

That's right. It's interesting, because everything you don't know about my character at the beginning of the film I also didn't know about that character when I read it. So I really had to sit down with David and make sure I understood who this guy was prior to the film. I didn't really need a big back-story, it was more just personality. In stripping away the civilized man and the moral man and the ethical man and all that sort of stuff, what he was then reverting back to being — like we would've all been thousands of years ago, the uncivilized people we were. So it was an interesting journey to get to the point of understanding what was left of him, the survivalist and animal he has become.

The boys are back, this time in Vegas

Think Like A Man Too. Screenwriting duo brought you the first Think Like A Man talk about sequels

NED EHRBAR
Metro World News in Hollywood

Screenwriting duo Keith Merryman and David A. Newman enjoyed a certain amount of unsupervised freedom while adapting Steve Harvey's self-help book Think Like a Man into the 2012 film. But when it came to making a sequel after the film turned into one of that summer's surprise hits, they found the powers that be were a tad more interested in how the second one would come together.

What was the difference in working environments between the first film and this one?

Newman: I think we had the gift of freedom, in a way. The book had fans, and Steve Harvey did a great job of presenting the book on Oprah, so we knew there was a fan base for the book, but there have been a lot of self-help books that have fan bases that, you know, you never know. I'll put it this way, it never occurred to us it was going to do what it did in the box office. We never even heard the words "No. 1 at the box office" until that day.

Merryman: Never even talked about it, never thought it would happen.

Newman: And I think we all were thinking it's our

Think Like a Man Too opens this Friday. CONTRIBUTED

$12-million movie that we all really love — yay! And maybe we weren't aware of Kevin (Hart)'s fan base or (producer) Will Packer's ability to get the word out, but I think everyone was really stunned from that point. And then after that The Best Man Holiday got green-lit after Think Like a Man, a lot of things have happened. But with success comes a whole different set of expectations on this one. So there were more eyes on the prize from the very beginning, more opinions. I wouldn't say cooks in the kitchen, but there were definitely more ideas thrown at us than there were the first time.

Merryman: The first one, we were basically told, "Steve Harvey has to be a character, and the book has to be a character — do whatever you want." Literally, that was it.

Newman: And in this one there were obviously some directives. Obviously Kevin's a much bigger star, so it would make sense to play to that and bump his role up.

Merryman: But it was intimidating because it was a big responsibility, you know, the way that people really connected to the first one. And with the sequel, our goal was to, despite all the craziness and campiness, to still root it in the relationships, which is why it's dramatically framed with them.

Are there different professional or diplomatic positions you have to assume when you're dealing with those new cooks in the kitchen? Like more smiling and nodding politely?

Newman: Yeah. I laugh because I think everyone thinks they're the reason the first one was such a hit, and I think everyone was. Like, every single person was a reason why it was a hit, from Will (director) to Tim (Story) to all of the actors and hopefully to us, too, but at the end of the day you have to have a great script if you're going to do it again. So there were a few different hats to wear from the very beginning. We were just concerned because we didn't want the entire tone of the movie to change into a different genre.

How about using Las Vegas as a setting?

Newman: Even The Hangover can't out-Hangover The Hangover. There's been three, and we're not that. So we really decided to do what it's like when you go to Vegas, where it's like the conflicts are somebody wants to do this and somebody wants to do that, you're automatically supposed to feel like you're having the best time of all time.

Merryman: And if you don't, you feel like you failed.

Newman: And then our main premise was it's the greatest place in the world for men and women to get their freak on — unless they go together as couples, which gave everything a conflict and comedy.

I couldn't help noticing the lamest character in your movie keeps suggesting they go see Jersey Boys, which you're opening against.

Newman: I know, I know. We didn't have time to go to Vegas, so we started doing research on the Internet, and everything was Criss Angel and Jersey Boys, and so we wrote it into the script. As soon as you get off the airplane there it's like, Jersey Boys! And I just thought Bennett would want to see it and know that it had eight Tony nominations. And it cracks me up that we're now opening the exact same weekend, and it's within the first eight minutes of our movie.

Love and survival behind bars

Orange is the New Black stars Taylor Schilling and Uzo Aduba talk about all of Season 2's drama, from Piper's new tough-girl persona to the good intentions behind Crazy Eyes' not-so-good behaviour.

MIRIAM OSBORNE
miriam.osborne@metronews.ca

Orange is the New Black Season 2 opened with a vengeance and never turned back.

In the first season we're introduced to a timid, naive Piper Chapman (Taylor Schilling), an upper middle class, well-educated 32-year-old yuppie finding her way through prison life after being sentenced to 15 months for carrying drug money 10 years prior.

But in Season 2, months into her sentence, Chapman survives on her newfound reputation as a thug after Season 1 ended with her beating a fellow inmate senseless.

This Chapman has a better understanding of what it takes to survive in prison.

"There's a shedding of a skin," Schilling says of her character's hardened shell this season. "There's nothing she can do but adapt."

Chapman is not the only inmate at Litchfield prison who's flexing her muscles. Things get dark in Season 2, and no character gets as dark as Suzanne "Crazy Eyes" Warren, played by Uzo Aduba.

Vee, a sort of den mother and repeat inmate at the prison — and possibly the most terrifying character on television — wants to run the prison, and with that, all the contraband coming in. So she taps into Crazy Eyes' vulnerability, using her need to be respected to do so.

Acting as Vee's enforcer gives Crazy Eyes a sense of purpose. Aduba points out that Vee is one of only two fellow inmates (Chapman being the other) who refers to her by her proper name as Suzanne.

Taylor Schilling, left, and Uzo Aduba catch a flick inmate-style on Orange is the New Black. NETFLIX

"It's like she feels seen by them," Aduba says. "Vee gives her time and dignity by saying that her job on the work crew was respectable, and that gave her something that she hadn't really been given by any other inmates."

Without giving away too many spoilers for those viewers taking their time to get through this season (seriously, watch it, so the rest of us who have can stop talking in hushed tones!), Crazy Eyes takes on her role as Vee's "muscle" with all the vigour you'd expect of someone named Crazy Eyes. Though Aduba sees it a bit differently.

"She was protecting what she loves. It's always with good intentions she does these things. That was how I was able to not judge her, because her thing isn't that she's enraged, she's just in love."

Orange is the New Black touches on a lot of things: racism, white privilege, sexuality, transgender issues, religion.

Dramedy

- Is Orange Is the New Black a comedy? A drama? Taylor Schilling says, like life, this show is a bit of both. "My experience of life is that these extremes exist, often so close to each other, even if it's the extreme of anger and sadness, or rage and humour. There's just so many extremes that smack up against each other in real life and that's what this show does, I think. This show has so many different colours that meet in the middle, including drama. It's really hard for me to make that call."

Quoted

"Suzanne is definitely starting to learn as the season winds down that love hurts a whole lot."

Uzo Aduba, Orange is the New Black star, on her character

Above all, what comes out is the human instinct to survive at any cost, our basic need to fit in, be respected and, Aduba is quick to add, be loved.

"But Suzanne is definitely starting to learn as the season winds down that love hurts a whole lot. Sometimes you give all of yourself to it and see very little return."

Polaris Music Prize. Drake, Arcade Fire on the long list

Past winners Arcade Fire and Owen Pallett have been named to the long list for this year's Polaris Music Prize.

The 40 contenders for the annual $30,000 award were announced Thursday at Calgary's National Music Centre.

Many other previous Polaris contenders made the cut, including Calgary singer/songwriter Chad VanGaalen, Toronto hip-hop artist Drake, Vancouver-based rapper Shad and Toronto multi-instrumentalist Basia Bulat.

First-timers vying for the Polaris include Hamilton singer/producer Jessy Lanza, Inuk throat singer Tanya Tagaq and Halifax rock duo Cousins.

The annual prize is awarded to the best Canadian album of the prior year as selected by a broad swath of journalists, bloggers and broadcasters, without regard for genre or sales.

Last year's prize was claimed by experimental Montreal collective Godspeed You! Black Emperor, while other winners have included Feist, Caribou and Patrick Watson.

The short list of 10 contenders will be announced July 15 in Toronto, while a winner will be crowned Sept. 22 during a gala at the Carlu. THE CANADIAN PRESS

J.D. Salinger of comedy finally returns

New York. 'I'm just back out here earning enough money to disappear again,' Chappelle joked during the first of nine scheduled performances at Radio City Music Hall

Dave Chappelle's hesitant, slow-motion comeback reached a big-tent crescendo when the comic performed a nearly two-hour set at Radio City Music Hall that seemed to officially announce his long-awaited return.

Chappelle, who famously abandoned his acclaimed and lucrative Comedy Central show in 2005, has largely shunned the public eye since last year resuming his stand-up career.

In his wide-ranging act Wednesday, Chappelle made up for lost time, catching up to a decade of racial and societal change, skipping from Herman Cain to Donald Sterling, his since-born children to his return from self-imposed exile.

'I'm just back out here earning enough money to disappear again,' he said mid-set as the sold-out crowd howled, collectively hoping he was joking.

The show was the first of nine scheduled for Chappelle at Radio City, easily his biggest platform in years. Music acts like the Roots, Nas and Janelle Monáe are to join him later, but the kickoff show began with the veteran Washington, D.C. comic Tony Woods as the opener and an intro from, of all people, James Lipton.

Lipton, who hosted Chappelle years ago on Inside the Actors Studio, repeated the unusual warnings posted around Radio City prohibiting not just recording but heckling and even texting. The rules (which weren't strictly enforced) spoke to Chappelle's unease about stepping back into the limelight, as well as an incident from last August. At a gig in Hartford, Conn., Chappelle shut down his act 10 minutes in because of heckling. Videos of the performance went viral online.

Chappelle immediately referenced that night during a tangent on North Korea, saying that if leader Kim Jong Un were to use an atom bomb, he might consider Hartford.

But such "spills along the way," as Chappelle said of his admittedly "ill-conceived" comeback, weren't a part of Wednesday's performance. A noticeably more buff Chappelle first appeared with his silhouette projected large on a screen. He looked increasingly comfortable as his set went on, and he chain-smoked cigarettes, bumming one from an audience member.

Chappelle frequently wove into his performance a self-awareness of his iconic stature as a kind of J.D. Salinger of comedy. He often sounded confined by the role: "I'm too famous to say everything I think or feel," Chappelle said.

Of his abrupt exit from Chappelle's Show he said: "I just didn't feel like doing it anymore. It was dramatic, but I feel better."

When someone shouted that he should bring back the show, Chappelle joked that he'll do it right after making Half-Baked 2 — an even unlikely return to his past (his 1998 stoner comedy Half-Baked). In the end, Chappelle looked reluctant to leave.

"This has been swell," he said, before adding several more anecdotes.

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Comeback outtakes

- Chappelle's vivid storytelling, laconic delivery and unparalleled commentary on race in America were just as sharp as they were nine years ago. Bits — "pieces" he wryly called them — included imagining Paula Deen as his personal chef, himself as a pregnant transgendered person and Lil Wayne guest-starring on CSI.
- Family life — a relatively new subject for the 40-year-old comedian — has given Chappelle some of his best new material. He told a tale of his wife showing up at an impromptu set after a marital spat, receiving an anonymous sex tape of himself and a woman made before his marriage, and sneaking bites from his children's packed school lunches when stoned late at night.
- Chappelle's remaining Radio City Music Hall performances run from June 20–June 27

I have to use a magnifying glass just to read the menus for this mobile version of the popular, aim-and-laugh wasteland shooter. The high-resolution graphics look great, but they make everything cramped, including the controls. This is a problem given that you're always running and shooting, non-stop. With manic, manipulative robots and psychopaths spouting Shakespearean insults, fans might say it's worth it, and admittedly upgrades eventually make things easier, but I found it merely drove me to seek out the console version instead. Squinting, even while laughing, isn't fun. KRIS ABEL

Maybe Kanye's not a groomzilla after all?

Kanye West and Annie Leibovitz have issued a joint statement clarifying comments the rapper made recently about the photographer.

The Thursday statement says West's comments Tuesday at the Cannes Lions international advertising festival regarding Leibovitz's availability to shoot his wedding "have been taken out of context and sensationalized."

West was frustrated that he couldn't secure Leibovitz's services for his marriage to Kim Kardashian last month, the statement says, but he was not assigning blame.

Why you gotta be so mean? Yahoos throw bottles at Taylor's house

Taylor Swift has some rather angry detractors out there, and apparently they like to take their anger out on her Watch Hill, Rhode Island vacation home. Three Connecticut residents were arrested last weekend on misdemeanour charges for throwing beer bottles at the home and shouting "F— you!" and making rude hand gestures at security guards, according to the Westerly Sun. The trio "extended their middle fingers" at the guards, though one suspect insisted to authorities that they were making a hand gesture Swift uses in one of her music videos as a way to pay tribute to her. All three were charged with misdemeanour disorderly conduct and released. Swift was not at the property at the time of the incident.

The new King of Spain begins his royal reign

MELINDA TAUB

Metro World News

Spain has a new king! Also a new queen, two new princesses (well, they were princesses already), and a retired ex-king. All hail King Felipe VI, Queen Letizia, and Princesses Leonor and Sofia.

"But wait," I'm sure you're saying. "A European royal family did something? Where are the commemorative plates? Why aren't I watching an E! special about it?" That's because the Spanish royal family rolls a little differently than our pals the Windsors — especially now, when Spain's economy is so bad. Felipe has promised to focus on austerity, and he set a good example with his coronation, which may have been the least fancy coronation since the Middle Ages — instead of a big, splashy ceremony with an international guest list and lots of parties, Felipe opted for a slimmed down event with relatively few guests and little in the way of pomp.

That's not the only unusual thing about this coronation: The reason Felipe has ascended to the throne in the first place is because his father, 76-year-old King Juan Carlos, decided to abdicate. Juan Carlos, who helped moved the country from fascism to democracy, has always been extremely popular with his subjects, but of late the Spanish royal family's reputation has taken some hits. Felipe's older sister Princess Cristina is embroiled in a tax scandal, and many are questioning why a cash-strapped nation needs to foot the bill for a royal family at all, even a relatively cheap one.

Fair point! Here is my counterpoint: Look at those adorable little princesses. You don't want them to have to grow up and get jobs, do you?

Lilo embraces new city (and a new beau?)

Lindsay Lohan apparently has been wasting no time getting her new London life up and running — including her love life. The starlet has been linked to British actor Tom Bilkey, with the pair spotted out and about. But Bilkey insists they're just friends. "I met Lindsay four years ago through mutual friends when I was working in L.A.," he tells the Daily Mirror. "She's actually really down-to-earth and cool. I think she likes the scene over here." Whether or not Lohan is getting romantic with Bilkey, she's definitely falling for London. "Lindsay's convinced everyone in America is out to get her, but she's had the opposite experience in London," a source previously told Radar Online. "She loves British culture and says people have treated her with respect for the first time in years. Now she's looking into the immigration process and planning a full-time relocation."

To say Natalie MacLean loves Canadian wine would be an understatement. The award-winning blogger has been an ardent supporter of our home-pressed juice since starting her popular wine review site nataliemaclean.com.

For the last few weeks, MacLean has been hosting The Great Canadian Wine Match: an online contest to find Canada's ultimate barbecue wine. Wine lovers across the country have nominated their favourites and have been encouraging others to vote for their picks. Voting ends today, so if you want to have your say, head to her site.

I always struggle when it comes to mentioning Canadian wines in this column. Popular in their own provinces, most don't have national distribution. That is starting to change.

Larger markets have recently received an allotment of Benjamin Bridge's 2013 Nova 7 ($24.99 - $25.95). Nova Scotia's aromatic, signature wine tastes like summer in a glass, with a light fizz lifting its zesty, citrus flavours.

Strawberry-Balsamic Glazed Pork Tenderloin.

Summer starts tomorrow and this little red berry is the star of the season

When you discover foods that have a natural affinity for one another, it's easy to find numerous excuses to enjoy them together.

One such combo is strawberries and balsamic vinegar. Both sport assertively sweet, nicely acidic flavours that not only work well together, but also pair up wonderfully with so many other foods.

For grilling season, pork tenderloin that is slathered with a strawberry-balsamic glaze just makes sense. For optimal flavour, the pork gets hit with the strawberry-balsamic blend three times.

1. In blender, combine strawberries, oil, vinegar, honey, garlic, salt and pepper. Puree until smooth. Pour about a third of mix into saucepan and set aside. Pour another third of mix into large non-reactive bowl. Pour the remaining sauce into a small bowl.

2. Slice pork tenderloins into 1/2-inch rounds. A few at a time, place rounds between sheets of plastic wrap, then use the meat mallet or rolling pin to carefully pound the rounds to an even thickness of about 1/4 inch. Place the pounded rounds in the non-reactive bowl with the sauce, turning to coat evenly. Refrigerate for 30 minutes.

3. After the pork has marinated for 20 minutes, heat a grill to medium-high.

4. Place saucepan of strawberry-balsamic sauce over medium-low heat on the stovetop. Bring to a simmer and cook, stirring frequently, for 8 to 10 minutes, or until thickened. Cover the pan and remove from the heat.

5. When the pork has finished marinating, use an oil-soaked paper towel held with tongs to oil the grill grates. Place the pork rounds on the grill. Baste the pork with the sauce set aside in the small bowl. Grill for 3 to 4 minutes, then flip the rounds, baste again and cook for another 3 to 4 minutes.

6. Divide pork among 6 serving plates; spoon simmered sauce overtop. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Stay on top of counter culture

Look out, old-school laminate and tile — and even current fave countertop materials, granite and quartz. Along with wood and recycled glass, concrete is growing in popularity. Skilled DIY-types can make simpler versions of custom-made alternatives. Here's what's happening in countertops now

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The concrete countertops in Eleanor Zuckerman's San Francisco kitchen are hand-crafted works of art.

Custom-designed by Fu-Tun Cheng of the Berkeley, Calif.-based Cheng Concrete, they feature colours like brick, flowing lines and pictures of nautilus shells.

"With concrete there is a lot of room for creativity, to say nothing of colour," says Zuckerman, a retired psychologist. "It gives you flexibility."

Homeowners looking to spice up their kitchens can install a variety of countertops that go beyond the traditional laminate and tile. Today's options include concrete and butcher-block-style wood, and a range of custom-designed colours and shapes. IceStone countertops use recycled glass from broken bottles.

"So many different materials are used in countertops these days," says Tony Izzo, Curtis Lumber's corporate kitchen and bath manager in Albany, N.Y. Until about 25 years ago, he says, roughly 90 per cent of countertops in U.S. homes were laminate, and the rest tile.

Then DuPont's Corian hit the market, followed by granite and quartz, which are current favourites, he says. Today, just half of countertops are laminate, Izzo says.

The burgeoning interest in alternative countertops is the natural extension of that trend. And they are becoming more affordable.

"Slowly, over the years, the market has really grown," says Mike Heidebrink, president of Cheng Concrete. When the company opened in 2002, it catered mostly to well-heeled dot-commers willing to spend more to bring an artisan's touch to their kitchens.

Today, Heidebrink says, Cheng also serves a growing number of skilled do-it-yourselfers who want to shape, mould and install countertops themselves. They can choose the colour and lines of their countertops, he says. Once installed and sealed, he says, concrete countertops are as durable as limestone and marble.

Concrete is being used to create artisanal countertops. ALL PHOTOS MATTHEW MILLMAN/CHENG CONCRETE/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Nils Wessell in Brooklyn.

New York, says the do-it-yourself movement is also fuelling his businesses, in a different way.

"This DIY interest in cooking leads to people wanting a suitable surface to chop up meat on," says Wessell. His company, Brooklyn Butcher Blocks, makes wooden countertops with enough thickness and durability to be used as cutting boards. Clients include barbeque restaurants as well as home cooks.

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

No countertop is perfect

- Concrete can stain, so it must be sealed properly.
- Wooden countertops take a beating from knives, although Wessell says they can be easily maintained with semi-regular sanding.
- Soapstone, popular for its natural look, has its quirks as well, Izzo says: It weathers over time.
- Granite countertops can release trace amounts of the radioactive gas radon. The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency says most granite countertops are safe, adding little to a house's radon level. It depends on the rock that is used, the agency says.

87 detained after stadium break-in

FIFA has acknowledged being embarrassed by a security lapse that let ticketless Chile fans rampage into Maracana Stadium.

Fences have been breached by fans at both World Cup matches staged at the country's most prestigious stadium, which hosts the final on July 13.

"It is embarrassing," FIFA director of security Ralf Mutschke said Thursday, one day after dozens of ticketless Chile fans broke into the stadium ahead of their team's 2-0 win against Spain.

Brazilian authorities said 87 people were detained after smashing their way through a perimeter wire fence into the stadium media centre.

Beautiful game's ugly side

FIFA has hands full with slurs, banners

FIFA said Thursday it was investigating claims that Mexico fans chanted anti-gay slurs during their opening match against Cameroon.

FIFA said "disciplinary proceedings were opened against Mexico for improper conduct of spectators" last Friday in Natal.

The same chants were heard during Mexico's second match against Brazil in Fortaleza on Tuesday.

"FIFA takes a firm, zero-tolerance stand against any form of discrimination or racism," FIFA said in a statement.

Fare, the European fan-monitoring group, has also alerted FIFA to far-right banners displayed by Croatia and Russia fans inside stadiums. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Twice bitten by Suarez

Big-time brace. Upon return from injury, controversial Uruguayan striker preys on shaky back line of England

Luis Suarez scored twice to give Uruguay a 2-1 victory over England at the World Cup on Thursday, making an instant impact in his return from injury to revive his team's Group D campaign.

The Liverpool striker, who hadn't played since undergoing surgery on his left knee last month, lashed in the winner in the 85th minute, after seeing his first-half opener cancelled out by Wayne Rooney.

After surprisingly losing its Group D opener to Costa Rica, Uruguay's qualifying chances have now been given a major lift, while England's hopes of advancing to the round of 16 are in real jeopardy after its worst World Cup start in more than half a century.

Suarez seemed to revel in inflicting England's second successive loss in Brazil, having been punished twice by the country's Football Association for misdemeanours, serving bans for racism and biting in the Premier League.

Of Uruguay's six efforts on target, five were from Suarez — including the two that beat goalkeeper Joe Hart as England's slack defending was exploited.

"I dreamt this," Suarez said at the Itaquerao Stadium in Sao Paulo. "I'm enjoying this moment, because of all I suffered, the criticism I received. So, there you go."

By taking his World Cup tally to five goals, Suarez ensured that Rooney's first-ever goal in 10 matches on football's Rooney tapped the ball home from close range in the 75th minute after connecting with Glen Johnson's pass. Having also lost against Italy, England now faces the prospect of not advancing from the group stage for the first time since 1958.

"We are a team that is making progress but results decide everything and both results have been negative," coach Roy Hodgson said.

Offence stunted. Greece stays afloat after losing captain to red card

Referee Joel Aguilar passes judgment on Greek captain Kostas Katsouranis on Thursday. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Reduced to 10 men after captain Kostas Katsouranis was sent off in the 38th minute with his second booking, Greece held on for a 0-0 draw with Japan on Thursday that kept both alive in Group C and sent rival Colombia through to the knockout round of the World Cup.

Both teams inserted new strikers in search of goals and a first victory, but ultimately the main objective was survival and both achieved that with one match left in group play. Japan would have been eliminated with a loss in Natal.

Japan

After Katsouranis was sent off for his rough challenge on Makoto Hasebe, Greece withdrew into a defensive setup and held firm. Greece surrendered three goals in a loss to Colombia, but even short-handed was better organized against Japan.

"My players were brilliant," said Greece coach Fernando Santos. "They worked hard after the red card. Without the red card we probably would have won the game."

Katsouranis will be suspended for Greece's final group match against Ivory Coast.

Japan's best chance came in the 68th minute when Shinji Kagawa played a long pass over the top to Atsuto Uchida, who sent it back across the middle to Yoshito Okubo, who blasted the volley high.

Earlier Thursday, Colombia was driven on by a partisan crowd that turned the Estadio Nacional into a sea of yellow as James Rodriguez and Juan Quintero scored in a six-minute spell in the second half to beat Ivory Coast 2-1.

Spotlight shines on Avalanche at the NHL awards show

High expectations.

Coach Patrick Roy hopes the attention his dream is drawing will inspire fear

The Colorado Avalanche could be wearing out the red carpet at the NHL awards show next week with all the talent they have up for honours.

Semyon Varlamov is in the running for top goalie, Nathan MacKinnon up for best rookie and Ryan O'Reilly a candidate for sportsmanship and gentlemanly conduct. Coach Patrick Roy also could be recognized for his work behind the bench.

It was just that kind of season for the surprising Avalanche, who tied a franchise record with 52 wins as they returned to the post-season after a three-year absence.

The attention now — with the nominations and all — is “exciting,” Roy said.

The attention they're sure to draw come next season?

Well, it's enough to inspire fear — or so Roy is hoping, because, “the day you're capable of dealing with the word ‘fear’, you're becoming a winner.”

“There are going to be expectations,” Roy said Thursday as he and front office executive Joe Sakic discussed everything from the upcoming draft to free agents to watching the Los Angeles Kings win the Stanley Cup title. “That's what we're going to have to go through.”

Up for silverware

In addition to goalie Semyon Varlamov and coach Patrick Roy, the Avs' contenders at the NHL awards include:

- Ryan O'Reilly up for the Lady Byng Award for gentlemanly conduct. He committed just one minor penalty all season.
- Nathan MacKinnon, a favourite for the Calder Trophy, given to the top first-year player. MacKinnon led all rookies in points (63), assists (39) and shots (241), scoring two goals and dishing out 10 assists in the post-season.

Joel Embiid

Coveted NBA prospect to undergo surgery

Kansas centre Joel Embiid, one of the top prospects in the upcoming NBA draft, has a stress fracture in his right foot and is scheduled to have surgery on Friday.

Embiid's agent, Arn Tellem, made the announcement on Thursday, a week before the draft. Tellem says Embiid fractured the navicular bone in his right foot and will be unable to participate in any additional workouts. He also will not attend the draft in New York.

Embiid was widely considered to be the favourite for the No. 1 overall draft pick held by the Cleveland Cavaliers.

But Embiid missed a chunk of last season with a back injury as well and that, combined with the foot injury, could cause him to slide on draft night.

NHL. Senators won't let Spezza go cheaply

Bryan Murray wants to do right by Jason Spezza, but not at the expense of the Ottawa Senators.

Ottawa's general manager said he's had discussions about trading his captain but will not make a move unless he can get an acceptable return.

“I don't think when you trade a player of Jason's calibre that you ever win,” Murray said on Thursday. “I think we try to get the best return we can, and then if it's not satisfactory we can't do it and he has a year left on his contract.”

Spezza had 23 goals and 66 points in 75 games last season. He has 251 goals and 687 points in 686 career NHL games.

Spezza has one year remaining on his contract with a cap hit of $7 million US. He has a limited no-trade clause, which allowed him to submit a list of 10 teams where he would not want to play. It's believed he would prefer to move out of Canada and the glare of the spotlight that comes from playing north of the border.

In return for Spezza, it's believed Murray would like to get a top-six player, a highly ranked prospect and perhaps a first-round pick at the upcoming NHL entry draft, seeing as the Senators don't have one this year.

Murray said he has heard from teams, and speculation has Anaheim and St. Louis as the front-runners.

“All we do in our business is investigate when there's a request by a player,” said Murray. “You investigate possibilities and you talk about it and negotiate and when you negotiate it sometimes takes a week. Not very often it's one phone call, sometimes many and in this case it appears that there will be many.”

Yankees sweep Jays out of the Bronx

David Phelps pitched seven strong innings, Carlos Beltran drove in two runs and the New York Yankees beat Toronto 6-4 Thursday night for their 16th consecutive home win over the Blue Jays.

Jacoby Ellsbury stole two bases, scored twice and hit one of three early sacrifice flies for the Yankees off Drew Hutchison. New York swiped four bags in all and scratched out its fifth run when Brett Gardner was going as Derek Jeter hit an RBI groundout — preventing an inning-ending double play.

Phelps (3-4) yielded two runs and struck out seven in winning his second straight outing after a four-start skid. The Yankees earned their first three-game sweep at home this season and sliced Toronto's lead in the AL East to 1-1/2 games.

Citing research by the Elias Sports Bureau, the Yankees said the winning streak against Toronto is their longest at home against one team since a 19-game run vs. Cleveland from June 1960 to April 1962.

Melky Cabrera and Edwin Encarnacion each hit a two-run homer for the Blue Jays, swept for the first time since Sept. 10-12 last season by the Los Angeles Angels. Toronto has dropped 25 of 27 at Yankee Stadium dating to 2011 and hasn't won in the Bronx since Aug. 29, 2012.

With closer David Robertson receiving a rest, Adam Warren got two outs for his second save — ending a rhythmless game that took 3 hours, 47 minutes.

Kershaw adds no-no to glitzy resumé

MLB. Reigning NL Cy Young winner tosses his first no-hitter against potent Rockies offence

Seeing his best friend only one out away from pitching a no-hitter, A.J. Ellis got a bit teary-eyed.

Not that Ellis could get too emotional, though. The Dodgers catcher still had to call the pitches for Clayton Kershaw to finish off the gem.

Kershaw added to his most remarkable resumé Wednesday night, throwing his first no-hitter and striking out a career-high 15 as

Los Angeles beat Colorado 8-0.

Only one batter got on base against Kershaw — Corey Dickerson reached on a throwing error by short-stop Hanley Ramirez, leading off the seventh inning. Kershaw struck out a swinging Dickerson to end the game.

"I guess I haven't really thought of the ramifications of throwing one of these things, but it's definitely special company," Kershaw said.

"I don't take for granted the history of this, or what it means. I definitely understand all that. But as far as individually, it's right up there with winning playoff games and all that stuff. It's pretty cool."

The 26-year-old lefty

Dodgers magic

22

Overall, the Dodgers franchise now has 22 no-hitters. Clayton Kershaw's 107-pitch effort came 3-1/2 weeks after teammate Josh Beckett pitched a no-hitter at Philadelphia — those are the only two no-hitters in the majors this season.

with the big-bending curveball, two Cy Young Awards, three ERA titles and a pair of strikeout crowns shut down a pretty good team, too.

The Rockies began the night leading the majors in batting average, hits and on-base percentage, and topped the NL in runs and homers.

"I started tearing up out there in the ninth inning, just sitting out there catching and watching him throw after he got those first two outs," Ellis said.

"To do it here at Dodger Stadium and do it with my best friend on the mound means the world to me. It's a game I'll watch on replays with my kids forever," he said.

Kershaw thrust his arms overhead after fanning Dickerson for the final out. He was mobbed by his teammates and joined on the field by wife Ellen for several hugs.

Kershaw joined Sandy Koufax and Bob Gibson as the only pitchers to throw a no-no as a reigning Cy Young Award winner.

Horoscopes

Aries

March 21 - April 20

Money and possessions are important, but don't make too big an issue of them. Over the next few days you should concentrate more on relationships, especially family.

Taurus

April 21 - May 21

You may be tempted to interfere in someone's personal situation but no good will come of it. You cannot do everything for everyone, so decide who is on your help list and let others learn from their own mistakes.

Gemini

May 22 - June 21

The Sun is about to leave your birth sign and it won't be long before you notice a difference in the direction your life seems to be taking. The important thing is that you don't try to stop the inevitable.

Cancer

June 22 - July 23

There is an urgency about you now that has been lacking in recent weeks and it will grow many times stronger when the Sun moves into your sign tomorrow. Your life is about to take a huge turn for the better.

Leo

July 24 - Aug. 23

If you play hard to get today you may send people the wrong sort of message. For one thing they may believe you no longer care, which of course isn't true. Make yourself available.

Virgo

Aug. 24 - Sept. 23

When the Sun changes signs tomorrow it's quite likely you will become aware of a better way to reach your aims and fulfill your desires. There's no rush, so take your time.

Libra

Sept. 24 - Oct. 23

It's good that you have the confidence to take risks but not good if you take them wildly. As the Sun nears the career angle of your chart make sure you don't do anything silly at work.

Scorpio

Oct. 24 - Nov. 22

You may be tempted to end a relationship that has been going through stormy seas but is that really a wise move? To be on the safe side wait until the Sun changes signs tomorrow. Your attitude may also change.

Sagittarius

Nov. 23 - Dec. 21

The most important thing now is that you do not allow vague fears to hold you back from what you are planning. A number of things can go wrong but even if they do the consequences won't be so bad.

Capricorn

Dec. 22 - Jan. 20

You seem to have resigned yourself to the idea that you will have to take a loss on something that hasn't been working out the way you planned. Don't be too hasty.

Aquarius

Jan. 21 - Feb. 19

Can you trust what other tell you? You cannot. They may not be trying to trick you but there is reason to believe they themselves have been deceived, so err on the side of caution.

Pisces

Feb. 20 - March 20

Fate will take its chosen path no matter what you may think about it, so go with the flow and adapt to what happens. One of the best times of the year is about to begin. You have nothing to fear. SALLY BROMPTON
